7000 AUSTIN STREET.

Health care provider Summit Health snagged 12,379 square feet to open a new facility specializing in ear, nose and throat medicine in Forest Hills, Queens, Commercial Observer has learned.

The space at 7000 Austin Street, between 69th Road and 70th Avenue, will open this fall, according to representatives for the landlord, Muss Development. Muss declined to provide details of the long-term deal.

“The office will bring additional high-quality specialty medical services to the residents of Forest Hills and nearby areas,” Jason Muss, president of the development company, said in a statement.

Summit Health’s new space was previously home to Eddie Bauer and Title Boxing, according to the landlord. The shopping center — home to Target, Starbucks and TGI Friday’s — covers 80,000 square feet.

The health care provider closed on the deal in March, adding to its more than 340 locations in New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Oregon. The company expanded after it formed in 2019 as the result of a merger between CityMD and Summit Medical Group. It signed a deal for the first co-branded CityMD and Summit Health location near Union Square last year, CO previously reported.
